Garden Economy Classes Opened

"Which plant would look good here?" or "How can I keep my lawn green at a low cost?"

These questions and many others are being answered for many homeowners each week by Stanley Spaulding who is conducting a garden economy class at the Torrance Evening High School.

Part of the Adult Education program, these classes are free to all persons interested whether or not they are residents of this area.

The last four weeks of the course begins next Tuesday evening, and enrollments are still being accepted. Classes meet each Tuesday evening.

Mr. Spaulding is editor of "The Begonian," the American Begonia Society's magazine. In his classes he will cover the homeowners problems from all angles and explain the use of soil conditioning agents, including the new Kriolium.

Judge Miller denied a plea against a jail sentence and placed Zitzer on five years probation with the provision that he serve the first 11 months in jail. His plea was based on the fact that he had to be free to support his family, he urged.

The judge denied the plea because of a previous felony conviction—writing checks with in-
